Roger Fuller / Chris Lloyd
1989 - 70ft - Traditional Stern
Narrowbeam boat lying at Mercia

The shell and superstructure of India was constructed by Roger Fuller at his yard in Stone. His boats have become prized possessions by those who appreciate their fine lines and old fashioned craftsmanship, faithfully replicating the lines of working boats that plied their trade on the Inland waterways. The fitout was by Chris Lloyd another well respected name. India is known in need of light some refurbishment as reflected in the price. From the stern there is the boatman's cabin which leads into the bathroom. The engine room houses the Gardner 2LW and all services. From the engine room you enter the galley, followed by the large saloon area. At present the cross bed in the boatman's cabin is used for sleeping, however the saloon is large enough to take a bedroom, still leaving a good saloon area. India offers a great opportunity to buy a quality boat at a price to allow for work to be done.
